

NEW LINE OF ATTACK ON DOTY

CHOLERA DEVELOPED HERE, HINTS LAWYER DUSHKIND.

Seeks to Show That It Came Through Carelessness in Cleaning Sewers on Hoffman Island—Chief Engineer Called to Testify on This Point.

Charles Dushkind, the attorney representing the prosecution in the investigation of Dr. Alvah H. Doty's conduct of quarantine, strove at yesterday's session before special Commissioner Charles N. Bulger to establish through the cross-examination of Dr. Doty's witnesses that the cases of cholera among immigrants on Hoffman Island were not brought there by the immigrants from Europe but had their inception on the island itself. He hinted at the possibility that the water supply on Hoffman Island had become contaminated through carelessness in the cleaning of the sewers and the inflow of drainage water into the well used to supply the drinking water.

The first step that the lawyer made in this unexpected turn was when he had Miss Winifred Noon, superintendent of nurses on Hoffman Island, on the stand. Dushkind asked her if she remembered the case of an immigrant woman named Szobak, whose baby had been detained because of a case of measles and who had been allowed to come from Ellis Island to Hoffman Island when the condition of the baby became serious. At first Miss Noon did not recollect the case, but when the lawyer refreshed her memory by citing certain incidents she admitted knowledge of the fact.

This immigrant woman had landed on Ellis Island from the steamship Carpathia on June 5. There were no indications of cholera aboard that ship, which had come from Italian and Mediterranean ports, and no cholera suspects had been detained from among her average passengers. The woman went to Hoffman Island to be with her sick baby the week in July and was stricken with the cholera and died on July 12. Dushkind contended that the woman reached the island before the first of the steamship Moltke's steerage passengers were landed there for quarantine. The cholera first developed among the Moltke's passengers, and the prevailing opinion has been that the disease came over on that ship.

In the afternoon Thomas Barnes, the chief engineer on Hoffman Island, went on the stand to testify in Dr. Doty's behalf and lawyer Dushkind took him over for a sharp cross-examination upon the water sewerage system of the island. Barnes proved a recalcitrant witness, and at times Dushkind, George Gordon Battle, Dr. Doty's counsel, and Commissioner Bulger were all hammering at him at once in an effort to straighten out his answers.

Dushkind wanted to know when it was that an old catch basin on the island had been drained by the sewerage system, whether it was before or after the Moltke's passengers had been landed for detention. Witness was hazy on this point, but he strenuously denied that, though the catch basin was drained at the same time that some of the cisterns were being cleaned there was any possibility of contamination of the cistern water. Any way, he said, with the exception of a cistern into which the water of a 1,000-foot well was pumped to be used for drinking purposes, all the others caught rain water from the roofs of the buildings purely for boiler purposes.

After repeated efforts the lawyer for the prosecution got Barnes to admit that when on Dr. Doty's orders he drained this reservoir for drinking water to clean it and whitened the inside he discovered that a two inch pipe connected this cistern with one into which the rain water dropped. Dushkind wanted to know if this latter reservoir might not have been contaminated at the time when the old cesspool was drained. Barnes could not give him very much satisfaction on this point.

The witness told of the elaborate precautions taken to cleanse all the water reservoirs on the island when the first cases of cholera were discovered. Dr. Doty had ordered the cleaning of four cisterns and the treatment of all water, even that used for drinking purposes, with potassium permanganate.

Some of the testimony given by Miss Noon, the superintendent of nurses, was flatly contradictory of the daily reports submitted to Dr. Doty by Dr. Hudson, his assistant, a portion of which were admitted in evidence in the morning session. This fact led Isaac F. Cohen, assistant to the commissioner, to hint of perjury, and the commissioner followed this up with a cross-examination about what he would do if legal evidence of perjury on the part of any witness could be brought to his notice.

VILLAGERS SHORT OF WATER.

Rockefeller Estate Notices the Depletion in Potable Water in Poconetown Neighborhood.

TARRYTOWN, Aug. 18. The Consolidated Water Company, which owns Poconetown Lake and which supplies the villages of Hastings, Dobbs Ferry, North Tarrytown, Ardsley and Scarsdale, has notified the village authorities that there is on hand only four weeks supply of water unless heavy rains come.

The company has requested consumers to use the water sparingly or it believes that another famine will come which will be worse than last year. Last fall help was obtained from New York city when the aqueduct was tapped at Ardsley, but it is not believed that relief could be looked for now from that source. Tarrytown has its own supply, but it is not a large one, and it is not enough to help out its sister villages, as it did last year. The trustees have sent out notices requesting people not to use water for drinking, lawns and to be economical in every way.

The water famine has hit John D. Rockefeller's estate. Mr. Rockefeller has his own supply, but it is not a large one, and it is not enough to help out its sister villages, as it did last year. The trustees have sent out notices requesting people not to use water for drinking, lawns and to be economical in every way.

BEATTY BACK AT WORK.

Park Superintendent's Return Revives Rumors of Stover's Resignation.

John H. Beatty, Superintendent of Parks for Manhattan and Richmond, was back at work yesterday after a vacation which began June 1. George H. Stover, the examiner in the office of Commissioner of Accounts Foshlock, who has been filling Beatty's chair, moved out of the Arsenal and went back to his former work.

Park Commissioner Stover had nothing to say as to the causes for restoring the veteran superintendent and dismissing the charges against him. There were reports about the Arsenal that the Commissioner was impressed by the growing belief that his administration of the parks was a failure and in the face of such general confidence he was considering the advisability of resigning.

There have been indications around the Arsenal that the Commissioner does not possess the respect and confidence of his employees. Many of the employees regard the park administration as a farce and make no effort to conceal their opinions.

Outside of the Commissioner's presence they refer to him as the "Rubber Stamp." They say that the Commissioner of Accounts has been the real Park Commissioner since June 1.

SAY SHE'S THE BURGLAR.

Domestic Held for Robbing House in East Seventy-ninth Street.

Ella Isaacs, 17 years old, who is employed as a maid in the home of A. W. Kahn of 150 East Seventy-ninth street, was arraigned in the Yorkville police court yesterday on a charge of burglary committed in the residence of Mrs. Bertha Lehrer of 152 East Seventy-ninth street.

The examination in court disclosed that the Lehrer home had been entered twice while the family was spending the summer at Rockaway. On July 15 the skylight on the roof was broken open and table covers, dress goods and other property valued at $500 was carried off.

The police could get no clue to the identity of the thief but a week ago Mrs. Kahn smelled illuminating gas coming from the Lehrer home and notified the police. It was found that the house had again been entered and a dozen gas jets had been turned on. The police then searched the narrow escape from a serious explosion.

Detective Gegan of the East Sixty-seventh street station got to work. He learned that Katie Romp, a maid employed by Dr. Charles B. Murray of 156 East Seventy-ninth street, said she saw the Isaacs girl climbing through the bay window of the Lehrer residence. In a fight with the detective, Miss Romp said she had witnessed the visit.

Then the detective got from Miss Jackson, a sister of ex-Coroner Jackson of 158 East Seventy-ninth street, a table cover which Mrs. Lehrer declares was one of those stolen from her. Miss Jackson said the Isaacs girl made her a present of it.

Mrs. Kahn produced a silk sofa cushion which she said her maid had presented to her as a mark of esteem. Mrs. Lehrer also identified this as her property.

The Isaacs girl's lawyer said that the proof against his client was incomplete as a further court examination would show. Magistrate Herbert ordered the detective to make a short affidavit against the girl and held her in $1,000 bail for examination Monday.

NO BAIL FOR THE JACKSONS.

Really Men May Stay in Jail Thirty Days Awaiting Extradition.

Edgar R. Jackson and his brother, Ostin M. Jackson, and secretary respectively of the Jackson Brothers Realty Company, with offices in the Times Building, who are in custody on warrants charging them with being fugitives from Massachusetts justice, were held to await extradition by Magistrate House in the West Side court yesterday. The brothers, who are reported to possess considerable wealth, spent the previous night in the lockup.

Edgar Jackson is an officer in half a dozen other realty concerns, holding property in the vicinity of New York city. He and his brother are charged with the larceny of $500 in connection with a Brooklyn, Mass., realty deal. They deny any wrongdoing.

The warrants which brought about their arrest for return to the jurisdiction of the Brooklyn courts cite that the brothers were charged with the larceny of $500 in connection with a Brooklyn, Mass., realty deal. They deny any wrongdoing.

Magistrate House refused to dismiss the warrants because of the law recently enacted which puts all extradition proceedings up to the District Attorney directly. He also refused to examine into the merits of the case, but permitted the recording of all the objections of the defendants' counsel. Then he held the brothers for extradition to New York.

REVERSES HIS PLEA OF GUILTY.

Ward Is Accused of Getting Money by Posing as Whittman's Friend.

Frederick Ward, who a few days ago pleaded guilty in General Sessions to grand larceny in the second degree, changed his mind yesterday when he was brought before Judge Swann for sentence. He told the court that he was not guilty and was remanded until a date for trial should be set.

Ward, who lives at 222 Third street, is accused by Michael Makaron of 143 Third street of obtaining $30 from him by representing himself as an intimate friend of District Attorney Whittman. Ward was charged with grand larceny in the second degree. He had been charged with grand larceny in the second degree. He had been charged with grand larceny in the second degree.

NEW MOTORMAN IN A SMASH.

Runs Away When His Car Collides With a Truck at a Crossing.

A Franklin avenue car in charge of a green motorman in place of a striker yesterday at Wythe avenue and Hewes street, Williamsburg, crashed into a truck of the H. H. Upham Company of 508 West Broadway, severely injuring the car, which was bound for Coney Island.

The motorman, who ran away after the smash, was supposed to come to a stop at Hewes street, but he disregarded the overhead sign. The truck was struck by the car, which was bound for Coney Island.

ONE MORE SHOCK GOT RID OF.

The rough wooden structure on the upper side of Forty-second street near the Hotel Manhattan, which has been an eyesore to merchants and passersby so long that no two persons could be found yesterday who agreed as to just when it was put there, started to come down yesterday.

The shed was put up for convenience of the directors of the Grand Central subway station. When the motorman ran away he lost his hat, which the police recovered.

VAL O'FARRELL FACES TRIAL.

Former Detective Charged With Accepting $1,000 Bribe.

Admits Receiving Money, but Declares Cash Was Consideration in Stock Deal—Accuses Say Clock Manufacturers Employed Him to Break Strike.

Valerian J. O'Farrell, who was reduced some time ago from the rank of a first grade detective and sent out on patrol duty attached to the West Sixty-eighth street station, was put on trial in Police Headquarters yesterday before Third Deputy Commissioner Walsh, charged with receiving $1,000 for siding with the manufacturers during the clockmakers' strike of 1910.

O'Farrell, with his partners, Lieut. Duggan and Kinsler, when they were attached to the detective bureau, had the reputation of being first class thief catchers. But after Magistrate Corrigan's attack on the police the three men were transferred out of the bureau, and O'Farrell was reduced from a first grade detective to the rank of patrolman.

Later charges of receiving the $1,000 were preferred against O'Farrell, and Inspector Russell was also drawn into the case. He denied having assigned O'Farrell, Duggan or Kinsler to strike duty, and as a result of this statement to the Commissioner he was reduced from his position as head of the detective bureau and sent to Staten Island as a captain.

The money was given O'Farrell by Isaac A. Silvermann, a private detective with offices at 110 Broadway, and O'Farrell admits the transaction, but says that the money was given him by Silvermann in payment for shares in the Human Life Publishing Company, a Boston concern which failed in April of this year.

Chief Inspector Schmittberger, who made the complaint against the former detective, contends that no such stock transfer ever took place, although the stock certificates endorsed by O'Farrell to Silvermann were offered in evidence.

Silvermann said that he was employed by the Manufacturers Association to look after its interests during the strike. He had a talk with Commissioner Crosey and was referred to Inspector Russell, who assigned O'Farrell, Duggan and Kinsler to the work. There were many arrests of strike breakers and many girls complained of rough conduct on the part of the police.

Met O'Farrell often during the strike, Silvermann said, and after the strike was over saw O'Farrell in his office. Then O'Farrell told him that he was to be married soon and needed $500. Silvermann gave him the $500 in return for shares in the Human Life Publishing Company.

O'Farrell assured him he would make good if the stock did not turn out to be all right. In December, he says, he gave O'Farrell $150, and later $250, making the total of $400. The last check Silvermann produced and offered in evidence. When the Human Life company failed Silvermann called O'Farrell up and said that he thought it was up to the detective to make good inasmuch as he had vouched for the stock and looked upon the money as loaned. O'Farrell then came to the court room and said that he could do so.

Silvermann mentioned that he had written letters to O'Farrell on the subject, and Commissioner Walsh asked that Silvermann's telephone stenographer, Alma Wolinsky, to come to the court room at the afternoon session and tell what she knew about the letters. While Silvermann was communicating with his office over the telephone the stenographer on the bench three men who had been sitting in the court room slipped out and attracted the Commissioner's attention.

Walsh said he had seen O'Farrell in Silvermann's office and that she had written several letters to him, but had not kept copies of them or the stenographic notes. She had read the stenographic notes to Commissioner Fredrick some months ago, said he, but he did not suggest that they be preserved.

A. Bennett, O'Farrell's lawyer, said that he thought the only letter Silvermann had written to the former detective was one asking him to make good inasmuch as he had vouched for the stock. The stenographer said that she had not read the stenographic notes to Commissioner Fredrick some months ago, said he, but he did not suggest that they be preserved.

FIVE CENTS MORE TRANSFERS.

Public Service Board Eyes the Rush to Start Them Afloat.

The offer of the surface railroad companies to give transfers on a basis of eight cents with an additional two cents for a second transfer does not appeal to the Public Service Commission. At another hearing held yesterday on the matter by the commission W. D. Guthrie, appearing for the bondholders' committee of the Third Avenue road, said that not only had the different companies agreed to those rates but that the printers were at work on the transfer slips.

"Very well," replied Commissioner McCarrall, who presided, "go ahead and establish that transfer system if you wish, but you do so on your own responsibility and the commission does not accept it as complying with the order which it has issued for the transferring of passengers from one line to another where those lines intersect."

McCarrall intimated that the commission had data showing that the companies could exchange passengers on very much better terms than those proposed. McCarrall described the eight and ten cent transfer basis as inadequate and unsatisfactory for the bondholders' plan which had been worked out by the companies and adjourned the hearing until next Tuesday, when it is expected that the board will issue an order requiring the companies to submit a plan that will be more economical to passengers making use of transfers.
